GlobalSource Maritime Services

With regional headquarters in Cyprus, the shipping capital of the eastern Mediterranean, and an on-call international team of US, British, Greek, and Cypriot military and civil maritime professionals, GlobalSource is well-positioned to provide an immediate and thorough investigative response to maritime incidents across the globe.

The GlobalSource team of experts includes engineers, structural engineers, and specialists in electronics, communications, navigation equipment, firefighting, and other key fields. Uniquely critical in their approach, the GlobalSource Maritime Services team are not just experts in their specific fields, but investigators in the true sense of the word – quick to identify inconsistencies and “red flags” that others less experienced might miss.

International Reach

Today, more than ever, maritime is an international playing field. A given ship may be manufactured in one country, registered in a second, docked in a third, and operating in an endless number of other localities - with crews from an endless array of nations.

GlobalSource excels in such complex environments. With consultants and associates worldwide, including many highly-challenging regions, we are well-placed to assist in matters that cross borders and timelines. Leveraging our global perspective and reach, GlobalSource consolidates information from multiple source and geographies to paint a clearer picture of the background, causality, and implications of a given incident.

Multidisciplinary Approach

When an incident occurs, GlobalSource examines the bigger picture. Our specialists assess a wide range of issues ranging from technical details (hull damage, communications malfunction, engine performance, etc.), the influence of the "human factor," and including financial and commercial issues related to the incident. Our team is multidisciplinary and includes not only maritime experts but also legal, financial, and commercial professionals.

Focus on Insurance

The insurance industry in particular is in demand of clear and concise investigations into incidents of personal and property damage on the sea. GlobalSource is a leading provider of investigative services to the insurance sector, and are used to responding quickly to the requirements of claims handlers and lawyers trying to assess not only damage but also responsibility.
